

Paul receives both favorable and unfavorable responses to his preaching (Acts 13:42-45).

Paul and Barnabas's preaching provokes division among the people, and they are forced to flee (Acts 14:4-6).

Paul heals a lame man, and the missionaries are believed to be pagan gods (Acts 14:8-12).

They preach the gospel and make many disciples (Acts 14:21a).

Antiochene Church sponsors Paul and Barnabas's mission to Cyprus and Asia Minor (Acts 13:3, 4).

Christianity is introduced into the upper echelons of Roman society (Acts 13:6-12).
